about wildmant

Wildmant is a men's underwear and swimwear company that specializes in male enhancement. Their break-through product, The Ball Lifter[®] launched their company in 2007 and started it towards becoming the largest selection of male enhancing garments world-wide.

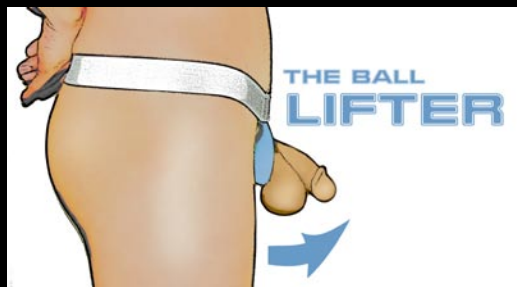

Owner/Creator, Tim Wildman started the company at age 35 after a long career in publishing and design. He worked largely with gay magazines and gay start-up companies. He eventually started his first design company, Yellow Puppy. Almost 20 years after graduating Syracuse University for fashion design, he started Wildmant and began his fashion career.

Tim recognized male enhancing garments were starting to become popular but noticed that no garment actually delivered a truly enhancing effect.

His unique way of lifting the manhood package from underneath with a simple elastic band revolutionized male enhancement and started a trend of "ball-lifting" items from all other major brands.

Although only two years old, Wildmant is a world-wide success with their online store and is offered in seven countries by other major online companies.

With over 60 different male enhancing items available, Wildmant continues in delivering new and fresh ideas to create quality, supportive designs that help men look their best.
